Do you play games with your classmates at school? Where do you play? In the UK, children play games outside in the playground. A traditional playground game is "Boatman". This is how to play it.

One child is the Boatman. The others must stand at the side of the playground. They must ask, "Boatman, can we go across the river?" The Boatman says, "You can go across the river if you are wearing green." (The Boatman can choose the colour.)

If you're wearing green, you can walk across the playground. The Boatman can't catch you. If you aren't wearing green, you mustn't walk – you must run very quickly past the Boatman. He must try to catch you.

If the Boatman catches you, you must stay beside him in the middle of the playground and help him catch the others. Then the others must ask again, "Boatman, can we go across the river?" Now the Boatman must choose the different colour: "You can go across the river if you are wearing blue." ...

3. If the Boatman catches you, you must stay and help him. _____
